Association of Independent Information Professionals Selects 10K Wizard for AIIP Technology Award

(BATON ROUGE, LA (October 23, 2008) -- The Association of Independent Information Professionals (AIIP) is pleased to announce that 10K Wizard (http://www.10kwizard.com/) is this year's recipient of the AIIP Technology Award. 10K Wizard received the Ninth Annual AIIP Technology Award for their Regulatory Database at Information Today, Inc.'s Internet Librarian conference in Monterey, CA on Tuesday, October 21st. Every year, the AIIP Technology Award goes to the company whose product best assists independent information professionals with their day-to-day operations in locating, analyzing, organizing, and delivering information.

The AIIP Awards Committee found that the 10K Wizard's Regulatory Database consolidates nine disparate sources of regulatory information, enabling users to utilize simple keywords or complex Boolean expressions to find and monitor the evolutionary path of regulations from a variety of related sources. 10K Wizard's alerting function delivers pro-active updates on any of these sources. The database contains proposed and final SEC rules, PCAOB proposed rules, speeches from the SEC Chairman and Commissioner as well as Commission Staff, exemptive orders, and interpretive and concept releases.

"It is great to see 10K Wizard consolidating nine disparate sources into one cohesive, searchable database. The ability to save search sets and set up alerts should be helpful for anyone searching regulatory filings," said AIIP President, Edward Vawter regarding 10K Wizard's new offerings.

From this year's field of nominees, the AIIP Awards Committee also gave Honorable Mention to PBWiki (http://www.pbwiki.com) for their online wiki application and to Tableau Software's Desktop Tableau (http://www.tableausoftware.com/products/desktop) for their visualization software. PBWiki is a powerful online collaboration tool that is used by teams to share ideas and information with a complete audit trail. Desktop Tableau is a desktop application for fast analytics and visualization of data from nearly any kind of database.
